

Cross-Platform Mobile Development Services

Why the World Loves It?

These are exciting times for mobile users with so many great smart-phone devices, platforms, and apps to choose from (and more becoming available daily)! To mobile app providers, however, it presents a huge challenge. With the rapid rise of mobile systems with different hardware, platforms, capabilities, features and restrictions, how do you really decide which platforms to develop for & which ones to drop from your road map?

If you choose one or two platforms to launch you apps on, you risk covering only a part of your target audience and leaving out many. Conversely, if you decide to develop for more or most of the platforms in vogue today (and will be tomorrow) using their individual frameworks & languages, the cost of development and maintenance can easily become uneconomical. Having said that, to remain competitive, you would definitely want your users to be able to access your apps from whatever mobile platforms they choose to. But how?

Fortunately, some great cross-platform mobile development tools -- like PhoneGap, Rhomobile, Appcelerator Titanium, etc -- have become available in the market today. These powerful frameworks let you develop your mobile app just once and seamlessly deploy to multiple platforms like Apple iOS, Google Android, HP webOS, Microsoft Windows Mobile, Nokia Symbian OS, RIM BlackBerry, Samsung Bada, etc.

If you want to do cool cross-platform mobile apps and need some development help, get in touch with us today to leverage the strong track record and solid experience of our experts to bring your cool mobile app ideas to life.
